Comments:

Hello, Delaware used to be our favorite vacation place, and my family used to own a house at Lewes. We traveled several times to DE from Northern VA. We have so many amazing memories from DE. This all ended when we started noticing the foul smell of the water and getting allergic reaction on our skin. My family sold the house and we stopped going there. Few years ago, we have decided to pick up kiteboarding, and again we looked at Delaware as an option to start learning it and we thought perhaps all the water issues has surely been addressed by 2018. However, to our dismay, this was not the case and the water situation was worse, and after more research we found out that there is whole kiteboarding community that advises against going to Delaware for this sport due to water pollution. We decided to travel to OBX, NC which is 6 hours away from us rather than travelling 2 hours to DE, just to avoid polluted waters. We advise all our family and friends not to go to DE anymore until the wastewater facility is upgraded and Mountaire Farms takes care of its' waste. I am surprised that the government is backing the polluters and not doing anything about it. Mountaire's pollution, and an increase in population has devastated the waste water system in DE, and it is getting worse. What does it take to modernize the system and hold polluters accountable? We want our beautiful and clean DE back. Thanks, Panee Vaghedi
