I disagree completely on the upcoming EV mandate. This matter should be given to the general assembly for discussion and vote, not dictated by the Governor. Where is the infrastructure to come from to feed all these cars and charging stations? Also, what plans are in place for the disposal of the EV battery waste? Also is the state going to support the fire companies to buy special apparatus to put out fires from the EV's batteries? In my opinion, first I disagree strongly that I should be mandated on what vehicle to buy. I disagree on the idea that this is helping the environment because the amount of energy by fossil burning machinery to create these batteries outweighs greatly the improved environmental condition. Delaware I think this is a very bad idea, both for the state of Delaware and the population of the state. Joseph Grib
