What studies have been made, if any, about the infrastructure needed in order to support the increase in demand of electricity to power these vehicles along with our current electricity usage? What would be the impact in the environment in order to create the infrastructure needed in terms of roads, power grid access to charger stations as well as the impact of housecharging stations and its costs, to older neighborhoods. How are minorities going to be able to afford 60k per car? Are there going to be subsidies for them? If so, where will these subsidies come from?
