I feel that if the Governor wants to mandate e v driving laws he and the State should lead by example. This includes City, County, and State vehicles. And then all commercial vehicles need to be included. The State of Delaware's infrastructure is not even close to being prepared for the transition. There are not nearly enough charging stations to support such a change. How would the residents affordably be able to transition. The State would need to supply docking stations throughout and that's something it can't come close to affording. Let We the people decide/gauge how this will go.
