I am against the proposed electric car mandate in Delaware. At present, fully electronic cars are a luxury vehicle that most of us cannot afford, and to force us to buy one by removing other realistic options (gas and diesel powered cars) is not what following the guidelines that our democratic republic was built upon. As well, the metals and materials required to build these cars are also costly and not easy to obtain, so mining them negatively impacts our environment and the living conditions of humans who live near these material sites.
