Say no to the lower emissions mandate. Not only is the cost of mining the materials for electric vehicles polluting to the environment there's only certain sources that have the materials available. Over 5-year period an electric car loses its mileage and battery cells go bad the cost of buying a new battery pack for your electric vehicle will cost more than the car's worth. And to begin with most electric vehicles cost more than the gas equivalent. Until such time that electric vehicles become more economical use a different battery source. Or even possible hydrogen.
