I am opposed to this regulation in its entirety. There is no need for this mandate and neither practical Evs nor electric capacity are available and won't be anytime soon. We barely have the capacity to supply the electricity needs of today and the only reason we can keep the lights on is we import electricity from surrounding states. The limited range of EVs is ludicrous and the long charge times are impractical. The materials for making the batteries must be imported and the spent batteries cannot be recycled. We are already in attainment for air quality in Delaware. This regulation is just an attempt to be trendy with no thought to the needs of our citizens.
