

Subject: Clean Car Regulations

Date: Thursday, April 6, 2023 at 11:21:55 AM Eastern Daylight Time

From: Eric Burnley

To: HearingComments, DNREC (MailBox Resources)

My name is Eric B. Burnley, Sr and I live in Milton, Delaware.

I support the regulations that will have the car dealers selling only electric cars in the future. People who judge what electric cars will be like by then by what they are now have no idea what technology can do in a very short time.

The first computers had diode tubes and took up an entire city block. The cooling complex took up another floor and almost another block in the DuPont building in Wilmington. Today you have more computing power in your cell phone.

By the time the mandate rolls around, the car batteries will be smaller and much more powerful. They will run longer and charge faster.

While mankind cannot stop global warming, we can slow it down. Getting fossil fuel burning cars and trucks off of our highways is a good beginning.