I believe it is past time for Delaware to adopt the same standard being implemented in California. A major infrastructure change like this will always feel jarring at first... but as a nation we have delayed and kicked the can down the road for so long that only something fairly jarring and drastic can possibly begin to address the problem. We MUST eliminate excess carbon from the energy systems that power our nation, and moving to an all-electric fleet of vehicles is a big step in the right direction. I would support the new proposed rules. Thank you
