Comments:

Mandating electric vehicles for everyone would have significant adverse effects on myself, my business, and all other mobile (ambulatory) large animal veterinarians. In a typical day, each of us covers hundreds of miles in the course of treating our animal patients. Having to pull over to recharge a vehicle would unnecessarily delay care to our patients. Fueling up a truck takes mere minutes. How long would charging take? Where are all of these chargers that we would need? It's time to rethink this plan.
