Comments:

Mandating a watershed and deep new technology that affects everyone in the state is wrongheaded. I'm a 40 year tenured C level person in the Energy Industry. The infrastructure, electric grid and the huge amount of embedded capital invested in the current fuel/transportation system of cars and trucks forbids government mandates. We are simply not ready. Technology must lead change not governments and bureaucrats. I am not against EVs. That said, they are only an emerging technology leaving more unanswered questions than answered questions. Let the technology evolve. We don't need a governmental revolution. K. Reuter
