I am writing in strong support of the Advanced Clean Car Regulation. A strong majority of Delawareans have continuously elected politicians that have supported action on climate change initiatives, such as a switch to electric cars. The right thing to do, to abide by the wishes of the majority of Delawareans, as indicated by their support and vote for those politicians over many years amongst the legislature and all the executive offices, is to implement these regulations. There is no validity to the argument that electric vehicles are being forced upon consumers by the government in a market economy that is already headed that direction. These regulations provide Delawareans that support a broad number of policies - from climate change adaptation/mitigation initiatives, to cleaner air and water, to less dependence on fossil fuels and their cost fluctuations - the choice to purchase an electric vehicle. I strongly support these regulations and hope that DNREC makes the choice that the majority of Delawareans have clearly indicated they want.
