It is my understanding that Delaware meets the standards for clean air and has done such for several years. We are not a state that has millions of cars on the roads such as California so why use their standards. I also believe that the mandate will burden those on fixed income, and the rebates are not enough to be of a benefit. This decision should be left up to the voters and not be mandated. Those in office have made bad decisions previously with the voters money and how we should spend it. As an example, Bloom energy where they are spending our money for 20 years or the Fiskers debacle, and this is another example where they are costing the public with their idea of what's good for everyone.
