Nobody wants to be FORCED to buy a car that they don't want and can't afford. The minerals to make the batteries for electric vehicles come from China and we shouldn't be depending on China for ANYTHING. When the battery dies, you have to buy a whole new car. The battery cannot be replaced. What is the plan for disposing of all the dead batteries? Our power grid is not ready to support all these electric vehicles. And one more thing: fossil fuels are required for generating electricity.
