The average Delawarean does not have the money to switch to an electric or hybrid vehicle. They have a much higher price tag and the maintenance for them is higher as well. In addition, we have seen how a similar bill in California has led to blackouts. The emissions cut using such bills is not drastic either as it still takes burning fossil fuels to make electricity. Let adults be responsible and make their own decisions regarding what type of vehicle they choose to ride around in. It is government overreach to try to make laws concerning personal property in this manner.
