EV mandates are not the right choice for DE. Government forced manipulation of markets, EV sales and power use through arbitrary mandates will cost consumers and tax payers. No plans related to how the energy grid can support the switch to EVs or how the lack of fuel related tax revenues will be collected to maintain DE roads. Both homes and commercial infrastructure will take decades to be capable of supporting large numbers of EVs. These policies will hurt lower income families the most by making cheaper automobile transportation unaccessible. A gradual market and consumer driven approach will serve the interests of the people while making the transition to cleaner energy possible without reckless heavy handed government mandates. Free societies, free people... Have open and free markets in which choice trumps centralized government control and manipulation.
