These requirements that you are trying to put in place are absolutely ridiculous and above and beyond the scope of your authority. Laws such as these if they are to be put in place by are elected officials not an appointed official who was not elected to office by the people they are governing over.

Not even ELECTED Officials should put forth laws like these. The market should drive the change to electric vehicles. Who's going to work on all these electric vehicles. Not nearly enough mechanics/Technicians already trained or even in training to work on these vehicles. You folks are over stepping your authority and are living in fantasy land if you think these laws are the least bit feasible and/or realistic.
