I would like to express my disagreement with this zero emissions car mandate you are trying to force on the citizens of Delaware. You are not even an elected body, but you want we the people to be subjected to this mandate. We do not have the infrastructure to handle this elect car requirement, let alone the cost and unreliability of these vehicles. The cost to the environment is high with the mining for the precious metals required to build the batteries, and we have no way of disposing of them when they reach their end of life. Guess they will sit and leach those metals into the river and bay and poison the environment. How is that an improvement over what we are doing now. Knee jerk reaction to "look" like are care about the environment. Totally against this.
