I do not support this. The current infrastructure would not support an increased demand on electricity. I live in a high rise condo in the city of Wilmington. How would I and my fellow city residents charge their vehicles overnight? The consumer cost of electricity bills would increase and the cost of an electric vehicle is very cost prohibitive for myself and most people. What about the lithium electric batteries? They will quickly fill a landfill when they could no longer be charged. The cost of a new lithium battery is also very cost prohibitive. There are many more issues that I could list. I do not think that this plan is very well researched or thought out.
