Since when did governors and federal leaders turn into Kings and making decrees on their subjects? I thought we were in a society/country where Freedoms are still relevant. Flipping a switch to change direction of the way transportation is to be handled is just dangerous to the individual and society as a whole. We are one of the 'cleanest' countries when it comes to air pollution. When China, Russia, India, etc control their air pollution then discussions should take place. When we have to pay China for the raw materials to produce electric vehicles, that in itself is just wrong. We as a country are in debt trillions upon trillions of dollars in debt. Retirees among others are on a fixed income, and your decree does nothing to help the individual. It was stated that we have enough 'fossil' fuel to last at least 100 years. During that time period transitioning to a cleaning fuel would be a better option due to technology. In other words STOP forcing your ideological philosophy on the citizens of Delaware.
