This proposal is way out of line for most Delawareans. There is no infrastructure to support it. There are many, many issues plaguing the industry. There are many, as yet unsolved, safety issues surrounding the use of EV's across the country. The fire hazards involved with EV's, along with MASSIVE issues encountered when trying to dispose of spent batteries. The huge purchase cost for families, even if all of the other issues are mitigated. We do not need a mandate like this. It's time our legislators woke up to the real issues that our citizens wrestle with every day and forget about some "pie in the sky" legislation that California has come up with. Just look at what a mess they live in every day... And we want to copy them? I don't think so !!!!!
