I am absolutely not in favor of this aggressive change in what vehicles we can drive and/or own. The electric vehicles are very expensive and the electric charging is more expense to install or time consuming and not cheap if you have to go somewhere to do it. From what I understand the cars have limited mileage per charge. What about the poor guy who is just making it trying to run a small business? I really think this is moving too quickly for all of us. What are we trying to prove? Other countries like China are building coal plants and we are trying to put the little people out of business and in the poor house. What has happened to common sense? It makes me very upset. Are we a democracy or a dictatorship? Why not do a vote of the people with everything spelled out as far as the expenses of all of it!!!
