Requiring Electric vehicles is a very stupid Idea. The effects on the environment is much worse from the manufacturing of the batteries than any gasoline engine cause. Also our electrical distribution system is not capable of charging all of these batteries. I like to travel long distances, 5 to 6 hundred miles a day. I can do this now with a couple of fuel stops that will take me a total of 20 minutes. with an EV that's two or three charges that is going to take hours for each. I don't have enough time to sit there doing nothing waiting for a battery to charge. I enjoy living in the state of Delaware, but an EV is mandated I will move out of this state immediately.
