Comments:

I do not think Delaware should dictate that a certain percentage (least of all 100%) of new cars sold need to be electric cars. Both gasoline and electric cars should be available as new car sales so that individuals can decide which type of car they prefer to purchase. That is the freedom that Americans deserve. Besides, the electric cars still put carbon emissions into the atmosphere - it is just done at a (mostly coal-fired) power plant instead of from each gas tank.
