I am a sales rep living in DE who vehemently opposes this regulation. I cannot live with and work in an electric vehicle. I put over 30K miles on a year and I frequently travel 400-500miles in one day which would make using a fully electric vehicle impossible. I could go into all of the disastrous consequences of this action including jobs lost, inefficient power grids, higher electric costs, small business owners (like service stations) with no businesses, high costs of vehicle maintenance etc. A new battery costs 12K- way above what most can afford. You are not looking at the big picture, and proponents of this "standard" are short sighted and don't care what it will do to our economy and for some of us, ruin our livelihood.
