I say no to currently proposed DNREC gasoline powered vehicle restrictions. The California influenced limitations and restrictions are too much, too soon. The necessary Delaware and nationwide infrastructure is not ready to support EV forced new vehicle purchases. A coordinated with benchmark metric requirements migration to more EVs and less gas power vehicles is an absolute minimum requirement. Do not put the cart before the horse. Delaware is not ready for such a non-democratic, autocratically forced ban and ultimate elimination of the sales of new gas powered vehicles at all. In a more perfect Delaware when the public and infrastructure are ready, then and only then will customers migrate to EVs. I am emphatically against the entire current proposal.
