In regard to the low emission vehicle program that is being proposed I would like to make these point in opposition: I am a mature, responsible, well educated adult and I don;t want to be told what kind of vehicle I can purchase. This proposal has not come about through the legislature of Delaware which is responsible for enacting laws in our state. The electric grid is unable to sustain the demand for electricity that these vehicles, along with other demands for electricity, will create. At present there is nothing being done to increase the capacity of our electric grid, and the capability needed is much further away than the proposal timeline. We are not California and using that state as a model is a very poor choice.
