I don't think anyone has the right to mandate something that is not practical. If those are trying to have us think "EV" cars are better, they are out of their minds. Our nationwide power grid is not capable of generating enough power as it is. So, other than building more generating plants that mostly run on fossil fuel, we will own cars that we can't drive. Better than all of the above, who benefits more. Once again follow the money and who is getting their pockets lined with our tax dollars. I'm retired and live on a fixed income. There is no way I can afford an "EV" car or pay additional higher electrical bills. Maybe those pushing "Green Deals" can put some of their money in my pocket. Yeah Right, that will never happen. My hope is that true Americans, who like their freedom, would tell "Big Government" that they can get somewhere. I like being able to make my own choices on how I live, what I drive, and where I travel. America doesn't need changes that a FEW think is better for ALL of us. I'm glad that I have this opportunity to voice my opinion. My hope is that others will take the time to say what their thoughts are too. Thank you, Earl Orth 3rd, of Millsboro, De.
