I do not support the Governors mandate of all vehicles being sold in DE by 2035 will be low emission battery vehicles. DE does not have the infrastructure for charging is said vehicles. DE does not have the ability to dispose of the lithium batteries at the end of their life nor does the USA. The disposal of the batteries must be solved before we mandate that everyone own an EV. Additionally, living on the coast as I do, if a hurricane arise, I will need to make a quick exit and no one can do that in an EV. It is not yet time for this mandate until you solve these problems.
