The state is not equipped to handle the addition of all the chartering station required for this mandate, not to mention the electrical grid in the mid Atlantic area. During the summer we are asked to reduce demand on the power grid and now we'll have additional load on an already stressed system. What about those in the lower income bracket? Is the state going to have a subsidized program for this group? Where is the waste from the depleted batteries going to go? What's the plan in case of a prolonged power outage?
