I feel DNREC should not be involved when it comes to the people making decisions pertaining to what kind of vehicle they choose to purchase, EV, gasoline, and or diesel until the entire planet, not state by state decides to "go green" as they say. Changing Delaware alone will not have an environmental impact. Sciences has already proved this. Also the facts on EV vehicles need to be considered. The facts need to be presented , not just what the politicians are trying to sell, and its up to this agency to present the correct information, other wise this agency will remain just as corrupt as the politicians pushing this agenda. EV vehicle are actually worse for the environment. All one has to do is their research in the production of batteries / EV vehicles to find the truth. I feel this agency needs to put out correct / factual information to the public pertaining production of EV vehicles, the environmental impact it has to make essentially just the batteries alone , (The diesel fuel, the heavy equipment to obtain resources to make the battery, where the batteries come from location wise ETC. Also lets not forget to provide information on the cost of the vehicle, or the cost of repairing the vehicle, By the way, how much does it cost to replace a battery in an EV vehicle? How much does it cost to get a charging station installed at the home? If information such as this is not presented, as I said above this agency remains corrupt trying to push an agenda. I also recommend better advertising on this topic. As it stands now it looks like everything such as meetings and bills are trying to get pushed through on the down low. How about making it known what is going on. If DNREC had to get an emergency message out to the public I'm sure it would be no trouble. How about putting this topic out as if it were an emergency instead of keeping it low. Better advertisement / marketing such as commercials, adds, radio transmission, etc. Allen
