Comments:

Our business relies on my service technicians driving up to 250 miles per day. There currently is no electric vehicle that is big enough to carry all of their tools and equipment while achieving an acceptable range. The time required to charge an EV during the work day would result in generating unbillable hours that will directly affect the profitability of my business. An EV mandate in Delaware will leave me no option other than moving my business to Pennsylvania. Prior to implementing an EV mandate, shouldn't the State carefully study all of the ramifications of doing so?
