Your mis-representing a beneficial process as being bad and requiring unconstitutional mandates is a grossly illegal act! Your goal of cutting carbon dioxide by half is to reduce it to the level where photosynthesis is hampered and some plant life begins to die! If you are so enamoured by California's irrational pipe dreams, feel totally free to move there and bask in their efforts to destroy their State for the sake of Snail Darters, and humans be-damned! We do not have electrical capacity, we do not have financial ability, we do not have the rare earth metals, there is not eco-friendly generative potential, and certainly not worn out battery dumps in Delaware to support your misguided mandate!!! Global greening from higher CO² sequesters carbon and feeds the population. Your attempts to derail that is criminal! Electric vehicles were the rage 120 years ago. Over 40 manufacturers cranking them out. Range up to about 140 miles per charge. So, here we go again, batteries still don't perform well in either heat or cold, and forget your campers, your loaded trailers, and anything designed to work, California is dreaming and you are stupidly swallowing it! Absolutely NO to your mandate!!!
