Comments:

It is unfair to expect people to purchase electric vehicles, and install charging devices in their homes. Also, it is not a feasible solution for those who live in urban areas or apartment complexes where being able to charge them would be a huge issue. I don't feel these cars are reliable for long distance travel, especially when you may be nowhere near a charging station in an emergency situation. Possibly hybrid vehicles would be a better solution, offering the reliability and backup of gasoline when the electric charge runs down.
