I strongly oppose this mandate. The State of Delaware is not ready to adopt California regulations. I'm not sure California was ready for the mandate. The people of Delaware will move to greener energies when the time is right, we don't need people who think they know better regulating or mandating things that we will do eventually anyway.

We all want the same thing, to preserve our planet for future generations but now is not the time, the infrastructure cannot handle the increased demand for electric. The time will come, but not now.
