NO NO NO PLEASE NO MANDATE Is this not The Unites States of America ? MANDATE ?? It can NOT be me. I am a 74 year old widow, YES, on a limited income. I own a 2011GMC Terrain with 172,000 + miles. A couple of years ago I replaced the tires -ok, it was time. In the last year, new brakes, catalytic converter, water pump, various filters, windshield wipers, regular oil changes and ?? Anyone who wants and can afford an EV should by all means be able to have one. But to MANDATE THIS change IS Unamerican. Change must evolve especially moving to Electric Vehicles...It will happen I do doubt but do not FORCE this is not adding seatbelts to a vehicle for safety. As the infrastructure improves, the batteries become less expensive and more reliable people may choose EVs..... Where do the discarded batteries go ? People are holding on to their current vehicles longer, decreasing the number of available used vehicles and what are, or will become, are much more expensive. When I think of how this MANDATATE will adversely affect the majority of Delawareans, young and old, with low or moderate incomes, it DISTRESSES me. I am losing sleep over it. When I speak with friends and neighbors, they all agree. The majority of pollution in Delaware is up north coming over from PA.- right ?? To MANDATE is UNAMERICAN.. UNAMERICAN. UNAMERICAN.
