Please do not do this. We do not want to be like Nantucket and have our beaches littered with debris because the blades break off with fiberglass debris, and hazardous material littering the beach and then we can't go to the beach and then tourism goes away. These are more of a money pit. They will not help anybody, and they just only destroy anything and everywhere they have placed. Personally, you're taking everything away from me that makes me happy in life with putting these in the ocean. But not to be selfish because I care about the whales and the dolphins more. We don't need to bulldoze through their home. When they do litter the beach and the beaches are closed, and my life is affected from this, don't worry I will be contacting my lawyer to sue you and anyone involved. Look at the cases in the other states, they are getting sued and we will do the same. Also see the picture that I sent you of a diagram. This is 30 whale deaths where you see the black dots, that has happened in the last four months from today's date 9/7/24. We have never seen records that high. We can't stop the navy from using sonar, but we don't need to keep adding to this problem. Please don't set yourself up for failure. When Trump stops this how much money will you loose for attempting to do it? Can you at least wait till after the election to reevaluate and decide? VA beach is also already having problems.
