I believe that this current Wastewater Proposal would present a danger to the Hockessin / Yorklyn area natural water system and underground supply. As we know from history, it is not a matter of if there will be a problem, it's just a matter of when! A poorly constructed storage tank or a faulty installation would cause a tragic event. I do not want Yorklyn to be listed in a history book chapter along with Love Canal, Exxon Valdez, 3 Mile Island, Paradise, California, or East Palestine , Ohio. I believe all of those events were due to human error or faulty equipment. In the latest heavy rainfall, I observed the entire project area appearing to be flooded. How could the tanks be emptied with no access after a heavy rainfall or snowstorm?
