To whom it may concern,

Good morning, I hope this email finds you well.

My name is Silas S [REDACTED] and I live in [REDACTED]. I am writing concerning the proposed data center in Delaware City.

I am strongly opposed to the building of the data center. I believe that the environmental impact of data centers with their egregious water consumption and energy demands will be detrimental to our communities across the state.

The negative impact that is already well documented from other such centers across the country cannot be ignored. The noise and environmental pollution is untenable and the increase to our energy bills should not be shouldered by the people of Delaware while these AI companies make billions of dollars in a speculative bubble.

In summation, do not approve the building of this data center.

Thank you for your time.
