To whom it may concern,

As a native born resident of Delaware, it genuinely disheartens me to see that a data center is being built not only within my state, but near homes and major roadways. It has been found time and time again in multiple other states, that data centers pollute water sources, increase utility bills for residents, and create smog that leads to unbearable smells and sights. This data center does not create jobs nor homes for new/old residents, it does not bring in money for our state's economy, nor does it make us, a fairly progressive state, look good. AI is a bubble waiting to burst, and with the risks it presents today, there is no good reason to build a data center here.

From,
