Gentlemen-

For the love of me, I will never understand why anyone would look to a state like California - whose population is exiting so quickly it's near impossible to rent a Uhaul - for legislative/policy inspiration, but here we are.

I am STRONGLY opposed to your extremely short-sighted plan to eliminate gas-powered vehicles. It's mind-boggling that educated people either don't see or don't care how damaging this would be to our economy, not to mention the fact that our electric grid wouldn't be able to handle that many EVs without astronomically expensive and unnecessary upgrades. Also, guess where electricity comes from. HINT: Not the plug in the wall.

Take care,
Donna
