Subject: EV

Dear Shawn,

A premature ban on gasoline powered vehicles is unwise - the future of EV is at best uncertain. The future of gasoline powered vehicles is assured to be important to the average American to function. I do believe there will be a day when gasoline powered vehicles will not be the dominant form of transportation. But that time is coming as our economy and technology evolves. It should be a gradual evolution, not revolution that hurts millions because it is prematurely mandated.

Thank you for hearing my opinion,

Mark
