What right does the state of Delaware have to even consider telling residents of this state what they can drive. I am 79 years old and I think you all are going crazy with this climate change. You have driven gas prices up because of what you think is best for all. If people have the money to purchase the Ev cars and they want one, fine. But I fill government is wrong on this subject. I grew up in Pittsburgh and the sky was orange from the steel mills , and we were all healthy and living by . the beach we have to go to Baltimore or Dover to shop and charging stations are not around even when they will be they take a long time to charge the cars. It is a stupid. No one should tell people in this free country what you should drive
