The way the Governor has bypassed the people of Delaware, using virtual Meetings to push through an unpopular agenda, is both cowardly and the act of another wannabe dictator.

I think he knows the public is aware of the expense and inconvenience which come with electric car ownership, and the demand for these cars is not as widespread and he wants to believe; in fact he probably already know this, by the way he is presenting it to the voters.

I personally will never buy and electric car, and most of the people that I know also have no desire to own one. Another hidden cost is the cost of insurance. I would urge anyone interested in owning an electric car to look into this. Of course, if one can afford $60,000 for a car, then that person probably will be ok with the cost, but most of us are not!
