What is the objective of the Delaware law to require cars after 2035 to be all electric? Feels like all we are doing is shifting the source of the creation of Carbon Monoxide from several locations to the powerplants. In addition creating a major pollution problem with the creation of the batteries and electrical systems needed to operate them.

Please don't tell me that Solar and Wind power is the answer as it would take up most of the Delaware beachfront to create sufficient wind power and large farm land areas for solar.
