Clean Air II Standard

Cork Powell <powell291@comcast.net>

Thu 12/15/2022 2:29 PM

To: Krall, Kyle (DNREC) <Kyle.Krall@delaware.gov>

Now I've seen it all. Delaware adoption these ridiculous electric vehicle laws of California is a step too far. Aside from the science of electric vehicles being very questionable, who are our government officials to say this is necessary? Where are their expertise? Where is the need?

In the last two years I've seen things happening in our country that I would have expected only to see in dictatorships. Government is running wild. Drunk with power. Drunk with mandates.

If you think we need an alternative energy source for vehicles… hit the pause button. Electric is not it. It just is not practical. We have almost 400 years of oil within our country's borders. If these bureaucrats think we need alternative to oil, I think we have time to do research it properly. Maybe in 400 years we will have people in power with common sense. Currently we do not.

G. Powell
Wilmington, DE.

Sent from my iPhone