We are opposed to passing this legislation for banning gas and diesel vehicles by 2035.
Several reasons are:
Our antiquated electrical grid cannot support charging all these electrical batteries.
The average middle class and lower income residents cannot afford the high purchasing price, nor the costly maintenance of electric vehicles.
The need for frequent recharging puts occupants at risk for being stranded in extreme weather conditions such as freezing/heatwave temperatures and during mandatory storm evacuations.

This issue needs careful consideration and planning, rather than jumping on California's political bandwagon.
