To Whom it May Concern,

After learning from my Delaware Senator about current opportunities to comment on Delaware adopting California's Advanced Clean Car II Standards, I am using an email provided to state my opposition to this proposal, some of my reasons being:

1. This is Delaware; this is not California. I support doing what is best for Delaware and its residents, based on accurate data and informed citizen input.
2. I oppose how I notice the topic of "climate change" is being used to advance a certain agenda.
3. I have read that other countries are the ones doing most harm to the environment.....so while NOT "excusing " what accurate scientifically proven harm is being done in this Nation, and while being personally a strong advocate for the good health of our environment, I ask (as just one part of this complex topic), what is being done to publicize and oppose that "most environmental harm" from other countries.
4. I have read about "climate change alerts" that are actually NOT based on accurate scientific data..... a scientist friend is one of those who spoke to me about that; and I recall seeing others. As a certified librarian (former academic library director), I am familiar with the critical importance of knowing the source of information and identifying biased and inaccurate "research."

Respectfully submitted,
