Hello,

I just wanted to write to state I oppose this proposal. I want to be clear and state I have no party affiliation whatsoever and I am very much environmentally conscious. As a resident of Sussex county, I despise the sprawl that is taking place all around me. Cutting down our natural resources in the name of money and "progress". With that being said, this standard that is being introduced is not a solution. It's a feel-good political piece and an overreach of the government. Switching all the cars to electric is only going to force all of the energy sources/power plants to work harder to do the same damage that the cars already do to the environment. I also want to state that I'm not pro-fossil fuels either. They are going to die out. There is no need for the government to step in. California has had grid issues sinces implementing this. Why would Delaware do this?
