Hello hope this email finds you well,
As far as the electric vehicles are concerned I believe that should be the judgment to somebody's decision it shouldn't be the decision of a bunch of guys sitting at a roundtable or sitting on the board deciding what's best for people unless you're physically coming to my house and buying me a new vehicle and compensating me for the one that I've paid on for the last five years then you don't have that right to tell me what vehicle I should be buying so take a note it's not your decision what people do in the privacy of their own home whether it's gas or electric that's my decision not yours, and the only way it becomes your decision is if you're buying it for me and you're compensating me for all the money I paid out for my other vehicles over reach much…..
